Tax-Payers of Lincoln County take Notice.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that the law requires the collector to collect every tax or take an oath that he was unable to find any personal property out of which to make the tax; that no property is exempt from taxes and that the collector may after the 1st day of December proceed to levy and sell on ten days notice; and that if the number of delinquents are large, on the 1st day of December I shall be compelled, in order to save myself, to commence collecting by law and sale; and that the expenses will come out of the tax-payer and which are the same as Sheriff's fees. Remember also the penalty, which is 5 per cent. for 1st month, 10 per cent for the 2d, and two per cent. additional for each month thereafter.

W. W. SHAW, collector.

Sunday School Convention.

The Montgomery county Sunday school convention will hold its next session at Jonesburg, November 14th and 15th. All who love the Lord Jesus and little children are invited to attend and participate in the labors and benefits of this convention. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to the Sunday school workers in Warren and Lincoln counties. Ample arrangements will be made for the entertainment of all who attend. The following is a synopsis of the programme of exercises:

1. Devotional services.
  2. Organization.
  3. Nature and design of this convention, by P. P. Ellis.
  4. The Sunday School—its aim, method and success, by Stephen Paxson.
  5. Jesus the model teacher, by Rev. Mr. Smith.
  6. Best method of opening a Sunday school, by J. E. Hutton, Esq.
  7. Children's mass meeting.
  8. How can a teacher accomplish most good? by T. E. Elmore.
  9. What literature should be circulated in the Sunday school.
  10. Election of officers.
  11. The Superintendent—his position, qualifications and duties, by H. W. Jones, Esq.
  12. What have I learned during the convention? by Prof. DeVault.
- By order of the committee.
J. H. LEUBSTER.

As a general thing farmers make it a point to secure the very highest prices for their hogs, and expect traders to give them as much at home as can be obtained in St. Louis, and then pay out of their own pockets the expense of transportation. When they meet a self-sacrificing trader of this description, they welcome him with open arms, careless of consequences to him or them. An instance of this has lately come to our knowledge. Peter Warner, who lived near Nineveh in this county, bought this season some eighteen hundred dollars worth of hogs at three dollars and fifty cents, agreeing to pay for the same on his return. In the meantime some of the farmers who had sold to him, began to reason that he could scarcely save himself at those figures, and went to Jonesburg to await his coming from the city. He met them very blandly, and as he had not received his pay in full it would be necessary for him to divide with them, paying each pro rata until the whole amount was expended. This they readily agreed to, and proceeded to the public room of the hotel to have the accounts properly audited. All seated around the table, Warner took the accounts, examined them critically, drew out a wilderness of figures on a blank sheet of foolscap, which he counted upward, downwards and then sideways. Still he could not apparently make it come out right. "Wait just one minute," said he, as he walked hurriedly out of the back door. They waited one minute, and several of them. Then the question was: "Where's Warner?" This question has not been yet satisfactorily answered. Perhaps it never will. His effects have been covered with attachments. At the prices he offered, Warner could have swept the country of its hogs, and why he did not, we cannot understand. Possibly he himself was, like Lord Clive, astonished at his own moderation.
